GRANT AND LEE MEET IN TENT AT CAMP WADSWORTH

Namesakes of Famous Civil War Leaders Now Lieutenants in American Service.

(Special to The Evening World.)

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, Feb. 25.—There was an echo of civil war days here when Second Lieut. U. S. Grant of the Ordnance Reserve Corps paid a friendly call upon First Lieut. Robert E. Lee of the Second Pioneer Infantry at the latter's tent. Grant is a grandson and a namesake of the great Union General, and Lieut. Lee is a great-nephew and namesake of the Confederate chief.

Lieut. Grant received his commission in the Ordnance Corps only a few days ago. He came here last September as a private in the 102d Ammunition Train, and was later made a Corporal. He is one of the most popular men in his company and won a commission as the result of a special examination. He will probably be assigned to duty in a Government laboratory or munitions plant because of his knowledge of chemistry. Lieut. Lee was graduated from the Officers' Training School at Fort Myer last summer, sent to Camp Meade, and transferred here about a month ago.

The meeting between the two young officers was arranged by Lieut. Col. Franklin W. Ward, Adjutant of the 25th Division. He told Lieut. Grant it would be a graceful thing for him to call on Lieut. Lee and welcome him to Camp Wadsworth. Lieut. Grant hesitated a moment, for he is a modest chap, but accepted the suggestion and went over.

Lieut. Lee gave him a hearty welcome. "Come right in," he said, cordially. "I had heard of you and intended to look you up."

The two young officers chatted on general subjects for several minutes. There was no reference to the meeting between the other Grant and the other Lee at Appomattox more than fifty years ago, and if either had that event in his thoughts he gave no sign. It was just a friendly conversation between the two young officers of the American Army of today.

version between the two young officers of the American Army of today.

"I am glad to have met you," said Lieut. Grant, as he rose to go, "and I wish you the best of luck."

"The same to you," replied Lieut. Lee. "Let me thank you again for your visit. I hope to see a great deal more of you. You are in an interesting branch of the service where there are great opportunities."

Lieut. Grant said afterward: "Lee and I am glad to see him. He is a fine chap, and I am glad I went to see him."

Lieut. Lee was equally appreciative.

When war was declared against Germany, Grant just graduated from Harvard, was in a Wall street business house. He had never fancied the army as a career, and did not ask for a commission, because he had had no military experience, but was among the first to enlist.

Lieut. Lee was living at Norfolk and had been admitted to the bar. He, too, had not thought of a military career, but answering the call for officers entered the training school at Fort Myer.

Lieut. Lee and Grant are both modest and shrink from publicity. Both are hard working young officers, earnestly trying to be of service. As Lieut. Grant put it, "It is rather embarrassing to inherit an illustrious name. I am afraid people will look upon me simply as the grandson of President Grant, and nothing else. And I am afraid that very thing will make it harder for me to win recognition by my own efforts and by my own merits. I have none."

Lieut. Lee expressed himself in the same manner, and this attitude, on their part, with the wholehearted devotion they are giving to their duties, has won them friends all over camp.

WAGE INQUIRY GOES DEEP.

Every Class of Railroad Workers Examined by Federal Board.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The extent of the Railroad Wage Commission's inquiry into the pay of railroad employees became evident today when the department of public hearings of representatives of workers seldom thought of by travelers as being part of the transportation system. When testimony is completed the commission will have obtained first hand information of the wages and needs of all classes of employees.

In addition, the statistical experts of the commission are making extensive researches with the aid of the unions and the railroad managements. More than 100 different forms have been sent to each railroad, to be filled with information to show a grouping by rates of pay of each class of employees, and a table for an approximate estimate of the aggregate amount involved in the case of any increase.

Catholic, Protestant and Jewish Clergy Take Part—Commander Lauds Men.

CAMP UPTON, L. I., Feb. 25.—Two Roman Catholic priests, three Protestant clergymen, a rabbi and a layman conducted the services which were held late yesterday in connection with the presentation to the cantonment of the new interdenominational church, which will be called "Church Headquarters." It is said to be the only cantonment edifice of its kind in the country.

Brig. Gen. Johnson, the division commander, in an address declared that the various chaplains, religious workers and organizations, such as the Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus and Jewish Board for Welfare Work, had helped greatly in establishing the high moral character of his men.

"Of the 45,000 men that have passed through this cantonment since it was established, but fifty-three have been tried by general court martial, and only ten of these were guilty of criminal offenses," said Gen. Johnson.

"When 22,000 men go to the city on leave and practically every one returns to camp on time, it reflects the influence of these bodies on the high moral spirit of the division."

"There are forty creeds at Camp Upton. At first you may have held aloof from the Protestant, the Catholic, the Jew, the Confucian or the Mohammedan here, but you have learned they are men like yourselves. You will be shoulder to shoulder with your comrades in Europe some day."

"The Jew will lay down his life for the Gentile, the Catholic for the Protestant. War doesn't allow the petty things of creed to divide men. As the commander of this camp I never could have looked favorably upon this church if it was to advance any propaganda or creed."

COMFORT KITS FOR ALL.

Every Man in Trenches Cared for by Red Cross.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—A cablegram received today at the national headquarters of the American Red Cross from Major James H. Perkins, American Red Cross Commissioner to Europe, says:

"Every American soldier now entering the trenches carries an American Red Cross comfort kit. The number of kits cannot be stated, but the fact that every soldier has one means that the work done by American soldiers now on the firing line. This fact should be a solace to the American women who have made them, as well as to the soldiers. More kits wanted with socks and tobacco."

CHOCOLATE BAN LIFTED, COMPANY IS EXONERATED

War Department Finds Product of Massachusetts Company Is All Right.

The War Department, having made a thorough investigation of the alleged plot to injure soldiers at Camp Dix by the insertion of harmful matter in sweet chocolate made by the Massachusetts Chocolate Company, has found that the charges were without foundation. The War Department has exonerated the company and its products.

A bar of chocolate containing a flat piece of glass about the size of a dime was the basis of the investigation. This piece of candy and various other samples were thoroughly tested.

The official report states that no evidence of glass was found in any of the specimens submitted. The large piece of glass submitted is evidently such a piece of glass as might get into the candy by accident.

The report is signed by William H. Arthur, Brigadier General, Medical Corps, N. A. Commandant.

BAUMANN'S THRIFT TALKS

Contentment
As Shakespeare might have said, "To please or not to please, that is the question."

When one is "satisfied" he is at peace with the whole world; nothing else matters. And why should we not all strive to attain this feeling of contentment? It is we, ourselves, who possess the means, and to reach the goal it becomes necessary only to put our house in order. The home atmosphere must be pleasant. It must be comfy; it must "breathe" contentment. And to accomplish this, the furnishings must be as harmonious as they are durable, as tasteful as they are restful.

It has been our privilege to have suggested the kind of outfitting that has started many a family on the road to enjoy real contentment.

May we hope to have the opportunity to show you how we have successfully accomplished this? Our plan of Liberal Dignified Credit has, of course, been of material assistance.
